Statement of Data Privacy and Student Information

This letter serves as a confirmation that Raising Robust Readers (RRR) does not collect, store, or sell any personal student information.

- We do not maintain records of student names, ages, or grade levels.
- We do not collect or store any personally identifiable information (PII).
- We do not track student progress or maintain individual learning data.

Our program is designed as a structured literacy resource, provided to schools and educators for direct classroom instruction. Any communication with school districts occurs only at the administrative level and is related to program implementation and support.

If you require any further clarification, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
Judy M. O'Halloran
